DESIGN HISTORY LECTURE

Penny Sparke on the modern interior

- Friday 15 May 7.15pm, £15

The transition from 19th to 20th Century style is not as simple and smooth as often perceived. Penny Sparke, Pro Vice-Chancellor(Arts) and Professor of Design History at Kingston University, will launch this new series of Design Museum design history lectures with an examination of the development of the modern interior. Drawing from the work of designers such as Marcel Breuer, Frank Lloyd Wright, Charles and Ray Eames, and Mies van der Rohe, the lecture will address the modern interior as both an idealised concept and as a realised form represented through a number of different aesthetic languages.

DESIGN OVERTIME

TIME MACHINE

- Friday 12 June 6 – 10pm, £5 Last admission 9.15pm

Yesterday, today and tomorrow, travel through the avenues and alley ways of time to learn from yesteryear and see a vision of the future. Come dressed as London Past or London Future, but nothing in between, and step into our four dimensional world of talks, workshops and entertainment. Contemplate how to change the course of design if you could travel back in time, or sip our super contemporary cocktail whilst deciding what the future should bring.
