Design Museum and Stephen Lawrence Centre launch photography competition

To celebrate the Design Museum's current exhibition Urban Africa - David Adjaye's Photographic Journey, the Design Museum and The Stephen Lawrence Charitable Trust launch a photography competition for budding snappers under 25 to capture something special about their city.

Adjaye's Associates and the Stephen Lawrence Charitable Trust will shortlist the top 50 entries and these images will all be displayed online through Flickr. These 50 photographs will then be whittled down to ten winning photographs, which will all win the chance to take part in a photography workshop at The Stephen Lawrence Centre as well as having their photographs displayed in the Design Museum.

The completion deadline is 20 August 2010, entries should be submitted to:
urbanphoto@designmuseum.org

Ends

Urban Africa – David Adjaye's Photographic Journey until 5 September

One of the leading architects of his generation, David Adjaye has stepped out of his regular line of work to photograph and document key cities in Africa as part of an ongoing project to study new patterns of urbanism. This collection of photographs is a personal quest through the eyes of an architect to address the scant knowledge of the built environment of the African continent.

The Stephen Lawrence Centre, is an educational centre built in memory of murdered teenager Stephen Lawrence. The centre, at Brookmill Road, Deptford, aims to help young people aged 14 to 25 who may be living in poverty to pursue careers in architecture and urban design. stephenlawrence.org.uk
